

SAVE THE DATE – March 30th 2018

How are social (gender) norms linked to (sexual) health of adolescents?

Preliminary agenda

MORNING

Social norms and adolescent health:
presentations of (research) experiences

How can social norms influence the health of adolescents?

Peter Decat, Dpt Family Medicine and Primary Health Care, Ghent University (confirmed)

Presentation of the Global Early Adolescent Study: how gender norms are linked to adolescent sexual health

Sara De Meyer – International Centre for Reproductive Health, Ghent University (confirmed)

Interventions that transform social norms to improve adolescent health

Rebecka Lundgren - Institute for Reproductive Health, Georgetown University (confirmed)

How local authorities can take into account social norms when providing health services and solving major health issues

Christophe Ramont - Dpt International Relations and Networks, City of Ghent (confirmed)

AFTERNOON

Gender norms and adolescent sexual health:
presentations and debate

What are gender norms and how can we measure their impact on health?

Sarah Van de Velde - Centre for Longitudinal and Life Course Studies, University of Antwerp (confirmed)

Sexual health of transgender youth

Joz Motmans – Guest professor Gender Studies, Ghent University – Coordinator Transgender Infopunt, University Hospital Ghent (confirmed)

Gender norms and female genital mutilation (FGM)

Nina Van Eekert – Phd student, University of Antwerp (confirmed)

Gender norms and sexual health of young adolescents in Ghent

Sara De Meyer – International Centre for Reproductive Health, Ghent University (confirmed)

How interventions on gender norms with local communities can contribute to an improvement of adolescent sexual health

Rebecka Lundgren - Institute for Reproductive Health, Georgetown University (confirmed)

Debate: How can we improve adolescent sexual health?

Kristien Michielsen – International Centre for Reproductive Health, Ghent University (confirmed)

With the support of
THE BELGIAN DEVELOPMENT COOPERATION

